This test consists of fifteen questions, each consisting of a code that needs to be decrypted. Each decrypted text is either a sentence or a quote. To receive credit for a question, the full decrypted sentence or quote (including the author, if given) needs to be written in the appropriate blank on the answer sheet. Punctuation is not needed.

The infamous Professor PUNisher is up to no good in our nation's capital. Having gotten word of your arrival, he has begun to play a little game. These messages have been found strewn throughout the city. Parts of them (those in Italics and quotation marks) are straightforward enough, but others seem like gibberish. We believe that these latter parts might actually be coded messages. Might these hold a clue as to what he's up to? Or might the old professor be trying to teach us a lesson?
